INTRODUCTION

In digital marketing, lead generation is the process of identifying, attracting, and transforming online users into prospects for a business. The method utilizes online channels, tactics, and strategies such as email campaigns, paid social media ads, or even offering downloadable content through a landing page.

How to Generate Marketing Leads?

Since loyal customers are the lifeblood of any successful business, lead generation is a top priority for marketers and the companies that want to grow. The strategies of lead generations typically involve using content in various forms to increase brand awareness and interest in products or services.

Content is the medium that we use to reach our ideal customers. We need to invest significant resources in creating valuable content that helps our target audience achieve some of their goals related to the product or service we sell.

1.By Using advertisement platforms

For a budget friendly and for quick reach to target audience , the most simple way to test out our Minimum Viable Product (MVP) is to run advertising campaigns on Google or social media platforms like Facebook based on our product or service type

2. Creating gated content pieces and promoting them :

One way to ensure that we attract quality leads is to create gated content. Gated content is valuable pieces of content that are related to the business goals of our prospect. This content can be anything- white papers, ebooks, case studies; giving it a clear and captivating title that tells a prospect precisely what they will gain when they download our content. Since the content is gated, prospects who want access will have to fill the lead capture form. The use of gated content is effective because it makes a good impression on prospects who download and brings our brand legitimacy in front of them. It also provides us with high-quality leads with a genuine interest in our product or service.

3. Host events

An event is a great way to engage with our target audience in real-time and builds meaningful relationships with them. Hosting a webinar, workshop, or conference to interact with our ideal customers gives us the chance to capture their contact information when they register for the event. By Paying close attention to questions, objections during our discussion in the event. We'll learn more about our audience and artfully guide them through our sales funnel.

➤ Analysis and Finding

Estd. 1999

Biju Patnaik Institute of Information Technology & Management Studies

Analysis:

- Wocially is social commerce platform in which it provides services like Digital Marketing, Fund Management Services, Automatic Software Management Service and Human Resources Management Service.
- I was Hired for Digital Marketing and my work was to generate lead and make people aware about the products available at Wocially.
- We were provided with a list of 1500 customers who were from different groups. It included SME groups, Retailers and various Vendors who were unaware about Digital Marketing. We used to take their business online and would promote the business in various social media like Facebook , Instagram, Linkdin etc.
- Each day we were given task to make around 50 calls and the outcome of the call were reported to the higher authority.
- We used to try to Pitch them by making cold calling. We attracted them by giving them the product knowledge provided by the company, and then we used to convert the potential customers by showing them a detailed information and benefit of being online during crisis like Covid19.

FINDINGS:

- It was found that nearly 1/3 of the total given list showed interest in our company and were interested in buying our product.
- Since Covid19 had hit people hard it was really risky and challenging for people to adapt to a new platform which they had never experienced before.
- Retailers and SME groups showed bit better results than Local Vendors. They thought it will be difficult for them to operate online and make their hereditary busy go socially accepted.
- We have generated a lead of around 400 people who thought this as an opportunity.

CHAPTER - 4

➤ Suggestions and Conclusion

Estd. 1999

Biju Patnaik Institute of Information Technology & Management Studies

Suggestions:

- The company has a good potential to emerge one of the best online platform for all people who are unaware about the benefits of online service.
- Only e-com platform and other online services were on upper side during Covid19. So it has higher potential on long run since it has many services available in a single platform.
- If more aware about company is reached to the people by visiting at ground level and by communicating with people and knowing their needs at ground level then the outcome will be more promising and legit.

Conclusion:

I would there by conclude that Wocially India Commerce Platform is a great platform which helps in providing a good service to people who are unaware about the benefits of Digital Marketing. Since it deals in Oligopoly Market it's hard to convince vendors and retailers over telephonic conversation. I was thankful to work in such a great environment and enhance my skills.
